TALK FOR ERIN.

John Redmond, Patrick McHugh and Thomas O'Donnell in New York.

Envoys From United Ireland Given Big Ovation at Carnegie Hall.

Outline of Nationalist Plan to Make Rule of England Impossible.

PARLIAMENT THE MAIN BATTLEFIELD

Notwithstanding there is a disaffection in New York City the Irish Nationalists received a hearty welcome upon their arrival upon American soil. From the World's report of the reception tendered them Sunday night we extract the following:

Carnegie Hall was filled last night with representative Irish-Americans in honor of John E. Redmond, M. P., leader of the Irish Nationalist party in the British Parliament. The reception was under the auspices of the Amalgamated Irish Societies in New York, the Irish Nationalist Club and the United Irish League.

With Mr. Redmond were Patrick A. McHugh, M. P. for Leitrim, and Thomas O'Donnell, M. P. for County Kerry. The three envoys, whose mission is to secure American sympathy for Ireland, were escorted from the Hoffman House by 200 men of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, under Col. Duffy, with Capt. Scanlon as aide.

The Executive Committee in charge of the meeting was composed of R. J. Kennedy, Chairman; H. G. Bannon, W. G. Fisher, Stephen McFarland, John Jay Joyce, William Temple Emmet and Col. Thomas F. Lynch. Mr. Emmet introduced William A. McAduo, Assistant Secretary of the Navy under Mr. Cleveland, as presiding officer of the meeting. When the three distinguished Irish delegates entered the audience arose and cheered and waved hats and handkerchiefs. Mr. McAduo said that the three envoys had come to this country at a critical time. When he spoke of Mr. Chamberlain as the worst enemy of the Irish vigorous hissing filled the hall. Later Mr. Redmond said that Mr. Chamberlain ought to be hanged from a lamp-post and the house applauded vigorously.

Mr. Redmond said in part:

"This is the first point which I desire to make to you in my address to you tonight—Nationalist Ireland is united as one man! The United Irish League, which has been adopted by the two conventions and by the verdict of eighty constituencies in Ireland, has spread all over the country, and today has more branches than either the National League or the Land League in the past, and the most powerful test of all the Irish people have within the past fifteen months out of their poverty subscribed $150,000 to carry out the programme laid down at the convention to conduct elections to sustain the Irish party in Parliament and to spread the United Irish League.

"Of that sum of $150,000 practically none whatever came from our brethren in other lands, and I know not what more conclusive test can possibly be suggested to prove that the reunion in Ireland is a genuine and complete one, and that the present movement has at its back the confidence and unanimous support of the Nationalists of the country. This record entitles me to say, therefore, that Irish unity on all questions of principle, organization and policy is an accomplished and undisputable fact.

"Whether the Irish people at home are left in this crisis of their country's history to carry on this struggle against England without the aid of their brethren throughout the world, or not we at home are disciplined enough, and strong enough, and earnest enough to carry on this movement ourselves, and at any cost we shall do so.

"We propose to advance the national cause of Irishmen by making the government of Ireland by England in every department, both in Parliament and out of Parliament, difficult and dangerous and finally impossible. We propose to accomplish this end first by means of the United Irish League organization. Now the second way in which we propose to make the government of Ireland difficult and dangerous and in the end impossible in England is by action of the Irish party in the House of Commons. I claim that the record of that party's last session in Parliament has been something of which all Irishmen may be proud. Allow me to take one instance—the Boer war. Were it not for Ireland no voice would have been raised in the British Parliament to protest against the brutal attempt to suppress two free republics in South Africa. It has been said that in taking this stand on the side of the Boers we have injured our own cause. That is not so. Our Irish cause is the cause of justice, humanity and liberty. We Irish members succeeded last session in so paralyzing the British Parliamentary machine that we have exhibited it to the world as incompetent to fulfill the duties that are assigned to it.

"I notice that Mr. Chamberlain proposes as a remedy the reduction of the Irish representation. Well, the proposal comes fittingly from such a man. If Mr. Chamberlain met his deserts he would end his career by hanging upon a lamp post. He is a man who has been false to every friend who trusted him, to every colleague who worked with him, to every party to which he belonged and to every principle that he ever advocated. No murderer ever went to the scaffold with hands more deeply imbedded with human blood than are Chamberlain's today. So far as we are concerned we absolutely despise the threats. We have heard them all before. If Chamberlain could have had his way the Irish race would have been exterminated by now, but when he is remembered only as the author of the most disgraceful war in the blood-stained history of England, the Irish national cause, which he once espoused, and which he now attempts to destroy, will be strong and triumphant."

CHARLES F. GRAINGER, OUR NEXT MAYOR.

WELL DONE.

Separated Brethren Help Catholics Make the Bazar a Success.

Happy Feeling Prevailed at the Two Last General Meetings.

Twenty Thousand Dollars Realized For Orphans' New Asylum.

THE NAMES OF SOME PRIZE WINNERS

The big bazar at Liederkranz Hall for the benefit of the New St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum has been brought to a successful conclusion. Be it said to the credit of all that it was a success from start to finish. The clergy and the men and the women worked, and worked hard, to make it a success. That it was successful is due not to any particular class, but to the fact that all classes worked together, not for glory, not for money nor for personal aggrandisement, but to comfortably house and care for the poor children whom the Almighty has seen fit to leave parentless.

If there are any Catholics in Louisville who did not do their share, they are few in number. Be it also said to the credit of Louisville Catholics that they have so much merited the friendship and esteem of their separated brethren that the latter assisted nobly in making the bazar what it was. Of course it was hard work. For many it meant giving up rest, pleasure and recreation of all sorts, not only for the ten days of the bazar, but it meant sacrifices for months before. There were committees and sub-committees. Each sub-committee had its own meetings and then from time to time reported back to the superior committees. There were at times heartaches and jealousies, but all of these were cast aside when these noble clergymen, women and laymen considered that they were not working for self, but for the little ones dear to the heart of the giver of all good.

So when the bazar closed on Thursday night, October 31, everybody was tired. They wanted no more bazars. They felt that they had done a good work and they had a right to feel conscious of it. The only real material benefit any one felt was the fact that priests and women and men had through the bazar and its preliminary meetings become acquainted with people they might never have known otherwise, men and women and priests whom they are proud to know and to call their friends. The orphans' bazar welded these people together with links of steel. After all, the bazar was worth working for.

On Sunday night the general committee met at St. Francis' Hall in the basement of the Cathedral to wind up the business of the bazar and to make arrangements for disposing of whatever articles had not been disposed of. Chairman E. J. O'Brien presided. After the reading of the minutes of the meeting held two weeks previous by Secretary John Doyle it was ascertained that nearly every one of the twenty-one English-speaking parishes in the city were represented. Reports of a financial nature could not be made for the reason that all the returns of money were not in. Rev. Father Conniff was able to report that his parish alone had secured $527.50 on the magnificent surplus presented to the bazar by Rev. Father Conniff, who had been presented with it by the good Sisters of Loretto. Mr. E. J. Mann, for and in behalf of Rev. Father Bax, reported that the gross receipts of the dining room had been $1,500, the net receipts $1,300. Rev. Father Rock urged all ladies and gentlemen to make returns not later than Monday, November 4. The meeting then adjourned until Thursday, November 7, at 8 o'clock p. m.

As promised to their friends and patrons during the bazar, the ladies in charge of St. Patrick's booth herewith announce the names of the persons who won the various articles on which they solicited chances:

Miss Bridget Ryan, brass bedstead.
Emmet Fitzpatrick, leather covered chair.
Monsignor Gambon, handsome surplice.
Miss Nellie Meehan, Eton jacket.
Miss Mary Hughes, gold and bronze chair.

Melvin Butler, picture, "The Agony."
Mrs. B. J. Campbell, fine drugget.
Mrs. Edward Holloran, washstand set.
Mattie Kerrick, bicycle.
Miss Nell McIlhenny, sofa pillow.
Belle Klotz, Battenberg centerpiece.
Thomas Keenan, load of coal.
Mary Collins, embroidered centerpiece.
Jailer John Pfanz, silk quilt.
Miss Maggie Judge, head rest.
Rev. Patrick Kelleher, "Lives of the Saints."

Miss Maggie Sheridan, slumber robe.
Miss Nellie Leamy, orphan dolls.
Farrel Curran, handsome lamp.
The final meeting of the general committee that had the bazar of St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum was held in St. Francis' Hall in the basement of the Cathedral Thursday evening. Final reports were made and all moneys turned in.

Treasurer Thomas J. Tierney reported that the grand total realized was $20,015.83. The expenses were only $699.05, leaving a total net balance of $19,316.78.

The reading of the report called for deafening applause. Clergymen, laymen and women were delighted. Cheer followed cheer, and it was ten minutes before any further business could be transacted.

The drawings then proceeded and resulted as follows:
Handsome lace surplice, donated by Rev. Father Conniff, was won by Sister Edmund, 4243 North Broadway, St. Louis.
Sister Edmund, who is now at Cedar Grove, upon being notified of her good luck presented the surplice to the zealous and deserving pastor of Our Lady's in Portland.

Handsome cameo, donated by Right Rev. Bishop Horstman, won by Mr. J. Prusky.

Jardinier, won by Mrs. Kirwan.
Enameled bath tub, by J. W. Hugelmeyer, 514 West Chestnut street.
Sofa pillow, by Mrs. McFarland.
The gold watch from the dining room was won by ticket No. 172.

The $200 meerschaum pipe was won by the Ahrens & Ott Manufacturing Company.

The copy of Raphael's Madonna, painted by Miss Florence Byrne, was won by Rev. B. A. Cunningham.

The drawings on the combination book resulted as follows:
Lady's gold watch, won by K. Hubrich, 1405 Frankfort avenue.

China dinner set, won by Mrs. B. Needham, 1407 High street.

The 400 days clock, won by Joseph Treas, 405 Lampton street.
Graphophone, George Zorn, 660 Third street.

Brass bed, George Hassenauer.
Boy's bicycle, Ed Alvey.

Extension table, F. B. Bowes, 1729 Second street.

Reclining chair, Eugene Toner, 1717 West Broadway.
Holy Bible, Steve Dunigan, Seventh and St. Catherine streets.

Before the Committee adjourned sine die Mr. Ed J. O'Brien, Chairman of the General Committee, Rev. Father Rock and Monsignor Bouchet made addresses complimenting the work done by the committees and their assistants. Then the "boss bazar" was a closed incident and the committee adjourned sine die.

To Mr. Ed O'Brien, Chairman of the committee, in a large measure is due the credit for the success of the bazar. He spent his time and his money. He worked early and late. He was ever tactful and polite, firm when he had to be. Hats off to Ed O'Brien.

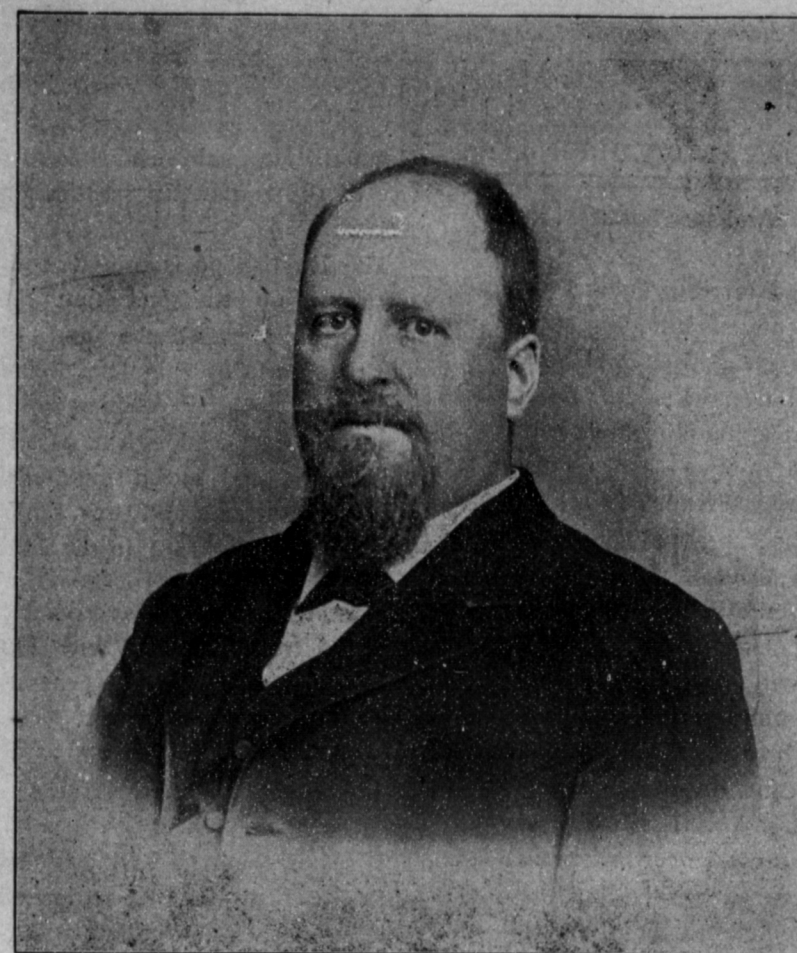

WILLIAM MULLOY.

His Sudden and Unexpected Death at St. Joseph's Infirmary.

The hosts of friends and acquaintances of William Mulloy, for many years the popular depot master at Tenth and Broadway, were pained and shocked Wednesday morning when they learned of his sudden and unexpected death at St. Joseph's Infirmary, the result of an operation which he had undergone.

William Mulloy was a veteran employee of the L. & N. and enjoyed the confidence and respect of the high and low officials of that great railway system. He had been ill only a few days, and only his family knew that he had been placed in the Infirmary. Owing to his advanced age he could not survive the shock. Besides his wife he leaves five children, for whom the greatest sympathy is felt in their bereavement. His funeral will take place at the Sacred Heart church at 6 o'clock this morning, and the body will then be shipped to Frankfort for interment.

Black velvet ribbon is shown on a soot red cloth bolero, worn with a skirt of the same material, also trimmed around the hem with velvet ribbon.

Futile Efforts to Destroy Kindly Feeling Between Jew and Catholic.

Emphatic Denial of Malicious Statements of Irresponsible Writers.

Mainly Utterances in Twice-a-Month, Our Local Jewish Contemporary.

JEW AND CATHOLIC MODEL CITIZENS

Under the heading, "Our Friend, the Pope," there appears an article in our local Jewish contemporary that is worthy the careful perusal of our Catholic readers. It is written in response to one of the many foolish statements appearing in the public press from irresponsible and ignorant correspondents, who seem to delight in misrepresenting the Holy Father and the Catholic church, which we have so frequently denounced. Catholic and Jew have always been tolerant of each other and will continue so, despite the enemies of both. The article in question follows:

A few weeks back there was published broadcast by the American press an article purporting to contain an utterance by the Pope, to the effect that it was the duty of society to "oppose the spread of Socialism, Free Masonry, Judaism and Anarchy." Since the appearance of the alleged statement Twice-a-Month has been besieged by local Jewish citizens who clamor for a reply and a recrimination. It was urged that this publication deny and denounce the charges placed, by the report, in the mouth of the Pope. In supporting such denial we were asked to compare the attitude of Jew and Catholic upon leading questions involved in good citizenship. The accusation was to have been hurled back at its author with quotations from him on such important subjects as public schools, the combination of church and State, freedom of speech and pen, religious tolerance or intolerance; all very momentous items in the character of an American citizen.

But as has been heretofore stated, Twice-a-Month is not the forum for battle between hostile forces. We did not believe, as we do not now believe, that the Pope had been correctly reported in these published interviews. If, on the other hand, the article mentioned contained no misrepresentation, then the criticism of the Pope was so apparently absurd as to carry with it its own rebuttal and rebuke. In any event, a discussion of the matter could here have served no better service than awakening animosity and exciting prejudice. It is a firm conviction of Twice-a-Month that both Jew and Catholic have, in America, made model citizens, brave in the country's battles, worthy in Commonwealth affairs.

Happily, however, the Catholic Standard and Times, a recognized mouthpiece of American Catholicism, relieves the situation of all embarrassments. While not as yet in possession of authentic information, the paper makes bold to assert that as far as Judaism is concerned the opposition of the Pope does not exist and has never been expressed. A portion of a most interesting article which the incident has provoked from the Standard and Times is given publication.

"It is in the knowledge of every one that the Holy Father has frequently interfered to repress the anti-Semitic feeling in European countries. He did all in his power to allay the bitterness of the anti-

Dreyfus agitation, which was the culmination of this sentiment. This is perfectly in accordance with the traditional attitude of the Holy See toward the Hebrew race.

"The great Pope Sixtus the Fifth it was who, out of compassion for the Jews, instituted for their protection the Ghetto—a district in Rome and other cities of Italy where they lived by themselves and were secured from molestation by the city rabble by means of walls and gates and armed sentries. It was this same high-minded Pontiff who delivered the famous judgment which Shakespeare puts in the mouth of Portia—not, be it marked, with regard to a Christian merchant, but in the case of a poor Jewish debtor whom a ferocious Christian creditor had gotten into his power in the way represented in the play, 'The Merchant of Venice.' The justice-loving Pope, who did not hesitate to have four powerful Roman nobles strung up on the bridge of Sant' Angelo for waging factional war in the city, rescinded the cruel compact and fined the Christian merchant in a heavy sum for imposing it. It was a pander to the anti-Jewish sentiment of Protestant England that Shakespeare deliberately inverted the character in this strange drama, and that Kit Marlowe wrote a still more malignant play called 'The Jew of Malta.'"

We are more than glad to repeat these expressions. In addition to being interesting they are calculated to restore the very cordial and kindly feeling that has heretofore existed between Jew and Catholic.

JOLLIFICATION.

Joe Nevin and Irish-Americans Celebrate Tuesday's Victory.

A feeling of unusual jollity prevailed at Thursday night's meeting of the Irish-American Society. It became known early in the evening that President Joe Nevin had arranged for the entertainment of the members at Mike Carroll's, on Seventh street, in celebration of Tuesday's great Democratic victory, and therefore nothing occurred to prolong the session.

A cordial reception was given Tom Tarpey and W. M. Murphy, who always have something interesting to say for the Irish-American Society. Thomas Claire filled the chair of Secretary Joe Byrne, upon whom rests great responsibility with the newly opened Central Stock Yards Company.

An earnest effort is to be made to bring back those members who have dropped out during the past four years, the causes for which are now happily removed. Resolutions were adopted to notify all that it was their duty to be present at the next two meetings, when the members will be formed into two committees and a revival inaugurated. An active canvass will be made and the side presenting the largest number of applications will be entertained at supper by the losers.

After the business had been transacted all adjourned to Carroll's, where a most enjoyable hour was spent, and the enthusiasm was no less than that which prevailed the evening before at Music Hall. Mayor-elect Grainger's health was drunk and congratulations exchanged over the work done for the Democracy. The suggestion of the name of President Nevin for the Board of Public Works was received with applause and it was manifest that his appointment would be hailed with delight by every Irish-American in Louisville.

SENATOR WILL PRESIDE.

Hon. William E. Mason, United States Senator, has accepted the invitation of the United Irish societies to preside at the Auditorium demonstration on Tuesday evening, November 24, when John E. Redmond and his companions will address the people.

SATOLLI COUNCIL

Held an Enjoyable and Successful Meeting Last Monday Night.

Initiates Twelve New Members and Receives Six More Applications.

Officers and Members Determined to Take the Lead in Louisville.

THE VISITORS HEARTILY WELCOMED

Satolli Council of the Young Men's Institute, which was formerly recognized as one of the most influential in the Kentucky jurisdiction, has for the past two years or more been resting on its laurels. The natural result was that its two competitors, Mackin and Trinity, soon passed her in the race for members, but this was not for long if the men of Satolli persevere in carrying out the program arranged for the coming six months. The officers and some of the more enterprising members. The Young Men's Institute has been enjoying a healthy growth throughout the entire country during the past year, and President O'Sullivan and his colleagues have determined that Satolli Council must throw off the lethargic spell under which she has so long labored and again assume her position as a leader in the order.

This new movement was successfully inaugurated Monday night at the hall on Second street, when twelve young men were initiated and six more elected membership. The cosy hall was thronged with members and visitors, every available chair being occupied. Such a meeting has not been witnessed in that council chamber for many a day, and it is a pleasure to state that the results were most gratifying. Candidates for initiation and visitors were given a cordial reception upon their arrival in the club parlor by President O'Sullivan, Richard Shanley, Messrs. Porter, McNally and other members. Trinity Council had a large representation, including President Sullivan, Dr. Ben and Edward Rosler, while from Mackin were present Grand Secretary George Lautz, the writer and others. But the ovation of the evening remained for Smith, the well known undertaker, who was on Tuesday elected to the General Council. Mr. Smith arrived in the hall just previous to the opening of the meeting and was greeted with an outburst of applause that shook the building.

President O'Sullivan presided and heartily dispatched the routine business preparatory to the initiatory exercises which were conducted by the degree team of Trinity Council in a most satisfactory manner, during which the obligation was most impressively administered to the following well known young men: James B. Perry, Charles J. Duane, J. Shebley, Edward J. Aud, L. E. M. Selman, Thomas J. Vaughn, John Fahey, Charles F. Lauer, C. J. O'Brien, Walter J. Joyce and James D. Dunn. Those elected and to be initiated at the next meeting were Messrs. William Duane, J. C. Feller, Jr., James L. Nalley, Edmund Gerst, George V. Kilcourse and Francis E. McCormick.

When the degrees had been conferred an hour was set aside for social festivities. Dick Shanley passing fine Havana to the present. After the new members had been introduced there were a number of impromptu speeches of a pleasant nature, especially those of John Sullivan, Emmet Slattery, Richard Shanley, Will McNalley, Eugene Cooney and the three favored new members, Messrs. Joyce, Musselman and Obrecht, who declared the initiation the "hottest" they ever experienced.

The general expression was that a fine class of young men had never before received by any council, and all present intimated it to be their purpose not to cease until each had secured at least one additional member. This council is centrally located and should have at least 500 active members enrolled before the next convention. From certain sources we learn that an active canvass is contemplated among the Catholic young men of Limerick and the central portion of the city, and if this policy is pushed vigorously there is no apparent reason why the hopes of Satolli should not be soon realized. Before adjourning a cordial invitation was extended members of the order generally to visit the meeting which are held every Monday night. The work of Trinity Council's degree team is especially worthy of mention, each member knew his part well and contributed greatly to the impressiveness as well as the pleasure experienced during the evening.

DEPUTY TYNAN HAPPY.

Mike Tynan, the genial and good natured Deputy Bailiff of the Police Court, has been having a double celebration this week. A handsome girl has arrived to share with him the fruits of Tuesday's great victory, and when receiving congratulations from the cause he is busy shaking hands with other.

LOUISVILLE, KY. SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1901.

WE ARE SATISFIED.

The election of Tuesday was very quiet and remarkably one-sided. Although the Democrats expected victory, they were surprised that it was so decisive and universal, they carrying all but a few precincts; and though the Republicans anticipated defeat, they were surprised that it was so sweeping and crushing. The Kentucky Irish American is not partisan and took no part in the campaign, as there was but one issue that concerned us, and we foresaw that the Republicans had allowed it rope enough to hang itself, which it did and the Republican ticket with it. In common with thousands of Louisville citizens who do not take a partisan view of city affairs are pleased with the result.

The Democratic ticket was the best of the two; it was composed of men, most of whom have been in public positions, and all well known and respected, and included Catholics and Protestants. They worked harmoniously and conducted their campaign without bitterness, billings-gate or abuse. They gained friends and drew votes to them from the first.

The Republican ticket, though composed of good men generally, contained a few that were decidedly objectionable to thousands of citizens, regardless of politics; then there was an element utterly defective and wholly unfit for public position or control and a menace to peace and safety, who were permitted to be officious and noisy in running the ticket and managing the campaign, entirely ostracising and continually abusing people because of religion and nationality; there was dissension, contention and ill feeling in the Republican management, resulting in disgust, apathy and turning of votes against the ticket. Thousands of Republicans did not register; others registered and did not vote, or voted the Democratic ticket, wholly or partly. The overwhelming victory of Tuesday is not only a deserved compliment to the Democratic candidates and an expression of public confidence, augmented as it was by the votes of thousands who ignored party lines, but it was a rebuke to the element that was allowed to dictate the Republican ticket and control their campaign; it was an emphatic protest against the intolerance which ostracises citizens because of their religious belief or race of birth. It was richly deserved and well administered.

Therefore, politics aside, we are pleased with the result of last Tuesday's election, and congratulate the victors, whom we believe will courteously and promptly attend to their public duties, according every citizen that to which he is entitled, regardless of what church he belongs to or where he was born.

YANKEE TURNED THE TRICK.

The American Tobacco Company has seen the first move of the British tobacco combine in the war for the tobacco trade of Great Britain and went it several better. The combine notified dealers and traders of the withdrawal of all bonuses to enable them to so reduce the prices as to undersell the American tobacco and thus drive it out of the British market. But the Yankee did not even wince; he does not reduce bonuses or make any other concession; he in fact does the opposite; he increases bonuses and binds him to the agreement for twenty years. And such bonuses! In British trade!

The American Tobacco Company has entered into a contract for twenty years with the United Kingdom Tobacco Dealers' Association, guaranteeing all dealers and traders a profit of 20 per cent. on cigarettes, etc., of American Tobacco Company manufacture, and the leading tobacco firm of Liverpool is their representative and partner in the agreement. What the British combine will do next is not indicated; they must be given time to catch their breath. Profits of 20 and 25 per cent. in trade, and that at prices so low they had to withdraw all bonuses over a nominal percentage to meet! But they must do something or they will soon have no trade. With American tobacco paying the dealers 20 and 25 per cent. profit on the one hand and British tobacco paying only a nominal profit on the other, it is a foregone conclusion which tobacco the dealers and the shopkeepers throughout Great Britain and her colonies will sell. They may dislike the blasted American and regard his pushing into the British markets as an intrusion, but his tobacco pays 20 and 25 per cent. as against 3 to 10 per cent., and the British dealers and shopkeepers are not in business for their health nor the British Jack.

A SPECK OF WAR.

All eyes are now turned to the East since France has invaded Turkish territory and threatens to seize ports and custom houses to collect claims against the Turkish Government. It recalls and revives the dread "Eastern question," once the thorn in Europe's side and the cause of wars that toppled over thrones, wiped out countries and changed the map of Europe. All the European powers have war vessels on the scene, doubtless with sealed orders for an emergency, which may or may not arise, when they will interfere on one side or the other—not that any of them are in love with the Turk, for all would rejoice were Turkey blotted from the European map, but jealous as to which of them will gain or lose in advantage and prestige in the world struggle for supremacy. To this jealousy of the European powers, which has shifted for or against Turkey, as the interests of the rival powers were affected, the existence of Turkey is due.

As to the justice of France's claims against Turkey, and even the belligerent manner resorted to for enforcing settlement, there is no controversy, as there was none when the United States by a similar naval demonstration forced Turkey to pay up $100,000 long past due. But the large fleet sent by France, the activity in French naval and military quarters, indicate that France expects possible interference, and the ordering of warships of other powers to Turkish waters and naval and military precautions taken in Europe reveal a fear that France may, on the plea of collecting claims, really have some ulterior object for so powerful a fleet and such sudden and quick movement, it being asserted that the other powers were not previously notified, as in customary in such cases. Then the fact that Russian war vessels were among the first on the scene is regarded with suspicion, especially by England and Germany, it being construed as ominous of Russian-French co-operation in case of a general war.

The Sultan has agreed to comply with the French demands, but as he did this before and failed to fulfill his pledge France insists on the immediate carrying out of the decree and the payment in cash of the financial part of the contract. The Sultan does not appear willing or able to do this, and the French Admiral has seized three Turkish customs ports on the island of Mitylene, in Asiatic Turkey. This has forced the Sultan to show his hand. He has protested to England and requests the enforcement of the treaty of 1878, by which, in exchange for the island of Cyprus, Great Britain guaranteed the integrity of the Sultan's possessions in Asia.

The English press comment unfavorably on the fact that the French fleet passed the important Turkish ports of Salonica, Beirut and Smyrna, either of which would have soon netted enough to pay off the claims, and seized three small ports on an island, and thus pulled England to the front in the mud. Now, what will England do? Uphold the treaty of 1878 with Turkey and order France to evacuate the island of Mitylene, or, as she did in the Russia-Turkey war, abandon the Turk to his fate, regardless of the treaty?

It seems that the first crisis has been reached and that it depends on England whether there will be a general European war or another British backdown in the East, and the Turk be forced to liquidate in cash or otherwise.

BULLER INCIDENT NOT CLOSED

Gen. Buller, though retired in disgrace(?), seems to have the War Office on the hip. The ground for his retirement was his acknowledgment that he sent a dispatch advising the surrender of Ladysmith, and he claims that the circumstances as represented to him justified such advice. The jingo papers having harped on the dispatch as cowardly and treacherous, Gen. Buller challenged them to publish it, as they claimed to have its text. It was published and Gen. Buller denounced the publication as garbled and falsehood, and demanded that the War Office permit the publication of the original dispatch from the record of the office. This was refused on the plea that it would be a bad precedent and unjust to other parties to make public secret war matters. This refusal has tended to increase the suspicion of the public and to draw friends to Buller, who is thus denied access to the only evidence that can positively vindicate him, and the public are denied the only evidence that can justify his condemnation. It is probable that Buller's friends will make a demand in Parliament for this and much more information from the War Office, for the desire to know who is responsible for the Boer war, its objects, mismanagement and disasters, is growing among all parties in Great Britain, and as the Government will have to call on Parliament for more money to continue the war, the issue can not well be avoided. Questions asked by individuals and newspapers can be ignored, but when Parliament makes the inquiry it must be satisfactorily answered or the Ministry step down and out. That these questions will be presented to Parliament there is no doubt; the only doubt is will a majority of Parliament vote to indorse those questions and thus cause a crisis between Parliament and the Ministry. The situation is admitted to be grave and there are those who predict a ministerial crisis.

The Lord has been good to Ireland this year. She has bounteous crops, labor is fully employed and in demand and the people are prosperous, well fed, clothed and housed. In England and Scotland crops are the poorest for years, labor is idle, trade depressed, money tight, the outlook discouraging. Millions in gold are shipped from New York to London every week because the cash is needed so badly the discount has been reduced.

Alas for English prestige and pride! The English iron and steel masters, in their effort to prevent the United States Steel Company from supplanting them in the British iron and steel trade, have secured the services of an American to plan, direct and manage their fight for them.

Those Boer guerrilla bands must be rather large and heavily armed, when they can defeat a British force of over 500 cavalry and artillery, kill and wound over 200, capture 150 and the artillery and supplies, and escape in safety before reinforcements can arrive.

Written for the Kentucky Irish American.
AT LAST.

When on my days of life the night is falling
And, in the winds, from unsummed spaces blown,
I hear far voices out of darkness calling
My feet to paths unknown.

Thou, who hast made my home of life so pleasant,
Leave not this tenant when its walls decay;
O love divine, O helper ever present,
Be thou my strength and stay.

Be near me when all else is from me drifting—
Earth, sky, home's pictures, days of shade and shine,
And kindly faces unto mine uplifting
In love which answers mine.

I have but Thee, my Father! let Thy spirit
Be with me then to comfort and uphold;
No gate of pearl, no branch of palm I merit,
Nor street of shining gold.

Suffice it if—my good and ill unreckoned
And both forgiven through Thy abounding grace—
I find myself by hands familiar beckoned
Unto my fitting place.

Some humble door among thy many mansions,
Some sheltering shade where sin and striving cease,
And flows forever through heaven's green expansions
The river of Thy peace.

There, from the music round about me stealing
I fain would learn the new and holy song,
And find at least beneath Thy trees of healing
The life for which I long.

A largely attended reception was given Wednesday evening by the Misses Wathen, 412 West Oak street, in honor of Miss Mary Holmdorf, of Buffalo, and Miss Helen McDermott, of Brooklyn, two of this season's most attractive visitors.

They will also make brief visits with friends in a number of Ohio towns before returning to their home at Omaha, Neb.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss A. Wesbecker and Charles Brown, which will be solemnized at St. Patrick's church on Tuesday evening, November 19, at 7 o'clock. Both young people are well known and the ceremony will doubtless interest a large number of their friends and admirers. The bride is the attractive daughter of Joseph Wesbecker, the well known Twelfth-street tinner, and the groom is an enterprising furniture dealer. This announcement will be read with more than ordinary interest by their wide circle of acquaintances.

There is great joy at the home of John J. Steiss, the popular and efficient stable boss at Senn & Ackermann's brewery. A fine boy weighing eleven pounds arrived at his house last Sunday morning. The boy will be christened next Sunday afternoon at St. Peter's church, on Jefferson street, near Thirteenth. After the christening the happy father wants all of his friends to assemble at his home, 2500 Magazine street, where he promises to give them a warm reception. John says that inasmuch as this is the first to arrive at his house he is going to have a grand time in the baby's honor.

A merry party of young people, chaperoned by Mrs. Waller, spent a delightful evening at Fountain Ferry Wednesday. Bowling was the principal feature of the evening and some very good scores were made and the prizes were very pretty. A bountiful supper was served at the conclusion of the evening's enjoyment. Those present were Misses Louise Rademaker, Bertha Rademaker, Ida Blanche Pilson, Sadie Doyle, Marie Costigan, Mary King, Margaret King, Wilhelmina Waller, Virginia Barrett, Messrs. After the games an elegant luncheon was served and the evening devoted to vocal and instrumental music and merriment. Among those present were Mamie Fallon, Lue Desser, Nora Kelleher, Mary Joyce, Kate Kelleher, Maggie Monahan, Susie Francis, Mary A. Joyce, A. Wallen and Julia McLaughlin, of Madison, Ind.; Messrs. CAPABLE MANAGER.

Kind Words From Paducah for Popular Young Man.

The Paducah papers have only kind words for our young friend Edmund Holley, who was forced to leave there because of failing health. His Louisville friends will rejoice that he has greatly improved since his arrival home last week. The following is a sample expression of the regard in which he is held: "Manager Edmund P. Holley, of Dun's agency, who sometime since tendered his resignation as their representative here, returns to his old home in Louisville next Wednesday for the purpose of engaging in the mercantile callings. Mr. Holley has been in the city since the death of Mr. A. M. Clarke, the former manager, and has met with great success on account of the thorough manner in which he understands his business. Many years ago he entered the Louisville office in a minor capacity and gradually worked himself up the ladder by close application. He has a keen insight into the intricate responsibilities incident upon the management of the mammoth company's affairs, and although quite young he conducts the business in a manner to reflect credit upon any of the older managers. With his departure he has the well wishes of everybody for his future success."

PROMISING JOURNALIST.

Among the many young newspaper men making their mark in New York none are more successful than Adolph Klauber, son of Mr. E. Klauber, of this city. Since going to the metropolis his rise has been phenomenal, and we have been reliably informed that it is the intention to place him in the managing editor's chair of the New York Times during the absence of Mr. Ochs in Europe. This will be welcome news to his friends in Louisville.

NOVEMBER BARGAINS.

In this issue will be found the advertisement of D. J. Coleman, the Portland-avenue furnishing goods and shoe merchant. He has lately received a large stock of first-class fall and winter goods, which he is selling at remarkably low prices. Owing to his fair dealing with all classes his business is assuring immense proportions. Onr down-town readers will find it to their advantage to visit his store.

SHELLEY RESIGNS.

John P. Shelley, for some years past the efficient Deputy Board Commissioner, resigned his position Thursday. No more popular official ever sat in the City Hall, and there is no doubt but that he will soon be provided with another equally as good if not better.

A great many of the models for tailor gowns originate in Vienna and they are something between the English severity and the glorified Parisian costume.

CRUSHED UNDER ENGINE

Awful Fate Comes to Well Known Young Railroad Man.

J. J. Mallon, a well known young man of this city, met with a horrible fate last Wednesday near Bloomfield. He was employed as a fireman on the Louisville & Nashville road, and it was while making repairs to the engine, which had broken down, that he was crushed to death. Five cars that had been shifted were standing on a slight incline, but from some unaccountable cause they began to descend, and without warning struck the engine under which he was working, the rear wheels passing over his body. The remains were brought to his home in this city, the funeral taking place Friday morning from St. John's church. The unfortunate young man was a member of the Catholic Knights of America, from which his widowed mother will receive $2,000.

JEFFERSON STATUE

Will Be Unveiled at Noon Today With Appropriate Exercises.

The magnificent statue of Thomas Jefferson presented to the city of Louisville by the Bernheim Brothers will be unveiled at noon today with appropriate exercises. Little Miss Bernheim will pull the string.

The statue is nine feet in height and rests on a base representing the Liberty Bell, on the four sides of which are pictures depicting Liberty, Justice, Equality and the Brotherhood of Man and Religious Freedom. It will stand at the entrance to the Court House, and will be a lasting monument to the liberality of I. W. and B. Bernheim. Would that Louisville had many more men of their generous and public spirit.

RECENT DEATHS.

Much sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. Francis Welsh in the loss of their bright young daughter Margaret, aged twelve years, who died Monday evening at the family residence, 2107 Preston street. Her funeral services were largely attended Wednesday by sorrowing friends and acquaintances of her parents.

The remains of Miss Frances McGrath, who died here Thursday, will be taken to Jeffersonville for burial. She was one of five daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dennis McGrath, who died in Jeffersonville within the past few years. She was a sister of James McGrath, and was a young woman of most amiable character.

The sympathy of a large circle of friends and acquaintances is extended to the husband and children of Mrs. Mary Carroll Rafferty, wife of William Rafferty, 1360 Seventh street, who died last Saturday afternoon at the ripe old age of sixty-three years. She was buried from the Dominican church Monday morning with a requiem high mass, the interment being in St. Louis cemetery.

The largest funeral witnessed for years in Jeffersonville occurred Wednesday morning at St. Anthony's church, when the last sad rites were performed over the remains of Mrs. Cornelia Burke. Within the sanctuary and assisting at the high mass of requiem were a large number of visiting clergymen, Very Rev. Louis Miller, of Syracuse, being the celebrant. The deceased was the mother of Hon. Frank Burke, of Indianapolis, and one of the best known and most highly esteemed women in Southern Indiana. She was a devout member of the Catholic church and always an earnest worker in its interest.

SHORT AND BRIEF.

The Democrats will control both houses of the Maryland Legislature, and the election of Arthur Gorman to the United States Senate is assured.

Thursday night the newly-elected Democratic Aldermen held a caucus and nominated Harry Weissinger for President and Dave Parkhill for Clerk.

The public sessions in the Schley case came to an end Thursday, and the report of the naval court will be awaited with eagerness, though it seems a foregone conclusion that the Admiral will come out with flying colors.

Gen. James Hagan, a veteran of the Mexican war and an officer in the Confederate army, died Wednesday at Mobile. He was a native of Ireland.

Black velvet applique is in evidence at all the shops, and there are, too, beautiful velvet appliques of softly shaded colors which promise stunning effects upon gowns in white or soft pastel tints.

PLEASING SURPRISE.

One of the most pleasing incidents connected with the late orphans' bazar happened the last night. Owing to the immense crowd present the bazar continued till near midnight, and the ladies were thrown almost into consternation when they learned that rain was pouring down. The street cars had stopped running on several lines, and to venture out in the storm meant ruin for many elegant and expensive costumes; particularly among the ladies representing St. Mary Magdalen's parish. Hon. Jacob Hoertz, who during the preceding ten days had been very generous in his treatment of these ladies, learned of their dilemma. Quietly stepping outside he telephoned the Transfer Company for eleven carriages, and as the ladies appeared at the door, expecting a thorough wetting, each was pleasantly surprised by being courteously escorted to seats in the carriages and driven home without getting so much as the soles of their shoes wet. This kind and thoughtful act of the genial and generous contractor has made him the most popular man in that parish among the ladies.

RECEPTION AND DANCE.

The Young Ladies Auxiliary of Trinity Council have issued invitations to their many friends for a reception and dance at Fountain Ferry Park, Tuesday evening, November 19, when all the friends and patrons of this popular organization will have a most enjoyable time.

FASHION'S FOIBLES.

The hemp lace made by the Italians is another trimming for the cloth gown. Handsome cloth gowns with long skirts are quite as popular as ever, especially in the light tints.

Rough materials in light, delicate blues and grays and biscuit tints make some very stunning gowns.

Silver tissue is being much used as a background for the fine laces and embroideries of the season.

Just now there seems to be a wide difference of opinion as to the general adoption of short walking skirts in Paris.

The earring question is settled. The Czarina appeared at the French festivities wearing "two huge pearls encrusted on the lobes of her ears." This sounds peculiar, but seems to mean that she wore pearl earrings.

It is said that the attempt to launch the short skirt in favor in Paris originated in the desire to make the tailor suit less suitable for receptions and other afternoon functions and to bring in the costumes of silk or velvet.

Long coats and cloaks of silk, satin, brocade and cloth are immensely popular. Their usefulness was so well established last season that there was no doubt the fashion would continue in favor, but there is a veritable craze for them now.

The long and the three-quarter coats are the prevailing styles in girls' outside garments; cloth, camels' hair, serge, zibeline, velvet and velveteen are the leading materials. Cape collars of some sort in varied sizes and shapes are the usual finish.

Many cloth and wool costumes have their edges cut in square tabs, which are about an inch apart. The tabs are stitched down on an under band of contrasting color in silk, often dotted in black, steel or silver. The effect is easily obtained by an ordinary dressmaker, yet is decidedly modish.

One very effective trimming in black is a silk serpentine braid in different widths, each scallop widening almost into a point. All the braids are flexible, soft and glossy, so they are easily arranged in any design. Something called the new art braid is so pliable that you can give it different shapes by stretching it in places.

Red coats with the large black hats are extremely smart, and these are equally pretty in the smooth cloth and the zibeline. A little edging of black fur or velvet is sometimes used for a finish in the collar. But large buttons, if there are any, are the rule. Some of the double-breasted, short-waisted coats fasten invisibly under the belt.

Except for very small girls the skirts are gored and cut circular as you fancy, and many of the models show the effect of a box plait directly in front with narrow stitched-down plaits with generous spaces between around the hips. The bodice is either a blouse in shape, with guimpe, a yoke or a chemisette vest, or it is a bolero with a blouse vest and a rather wide draped belt of silk.

This fall the velvet gown, which was extremely popular with women of fashion, has made its appearance in the shops and there promises to be a veritable rage for it until the middle of the winter, when it is quite likely that it will become too popular. For the inevitable cheap imitation is in the market, and this is bound to injure the good gowns. The velvet gown is made in the tailor manner with bands of silk and cloth and tailor-finished seams, but, of course, it is vastly different from the typical tailor gown.

The doom of the pompadour has been spoken, and while women will part with it with regret men will be glad of its passing, for the masculine critics and artists have never been enthusiastic in their admiration of the puffed-out aureole of hair that has been such a popular fashion for more than two years. In nine cases out of ten the style has been exaggerated and has necessitated the wearing of a pad of curled hair or a "rat" or false pompadour beneath the hair to give it the required fullness of appearance.

"I am unfamiliar with American customs," said one European nobleman to another. "What is the usual mode of procedure in marrying an heiress?"

"It is very simple. You tell the lady how much you love her and her father how much you owe."

IRELAND.

Record of the Most Important of the Recent Events Culled From Exchanges.

Michael Noone, an inmate of the South Dublin Union, was found drowned in a stream at Mount Browne, near the Union. The manner in which the deceased came by his death has not transpired.

Martin Gleason, of Cloughjordan, County Tipperary, was brought up in custody on remand charged with maiming a donkey. Further evidence having been given, the accused was again remanded in custody.

The body of the person drowned has been discovered in St. John's river, Waterford, and has been identified as that of a woman named Catherine Darcy, whose occupation was that of an itinerant vegetable seller.

Large takes of herring are reported in Sligo Bay during the last few weeks. On Tuesday and Wednesday nights the fishing was exceptionally fine and the fish of good quality. A good many buyers attended at Sligo and Ballisodare.

Frederick Dawson, General Manager and Secretary of the Derry and Lough Swilly railway, has accepted the position of manager of the New Cape Central railway, South Africa, and will shortly leave to take up the duties of the position.

On Saturday from information received Constables Hargarten and Breslin arrested Patrick Burns, a laborer at Drogheda, on a charge of highway robbery of goods from Jane Sullivan. Mayor Downey remanded accused to petty sessions.

The Mayor of Limerick, who recently wrote to Andrew Carnegie asking for a grant towards the public free library, has received a reply that if the city would contribute $1,750 a year for the support of the library he would give $35,000 to provide the building.

From the 1st proximo the police district of Moate will be disbanded. The separate stations will be amalgamated with Athlone, and portion of Athlone district will be attached to the Roscommon and Ballisloe districts. Mr. Stedman, in charge of the disbanded district, has been transferred to Killaloe.

Alexander McCarthy, Town Clerk of Cork, died on Thursday, in the sixty-eighth year of age and the forty-second year of his office. He was an eminent solicitor and senior Town Clerk of the United Kingdom. He was highly esteemed by his fellow-citizens, who ever regarded him as a most honorable and upright official, whose advice on municipal law was highly prized.

The criminal business of the Cork quarter sessions was disposed of on Monday before his Honor the Recorder, Sir John Chute Neligan. For having feloniously broken into a store at Kinsale barracks belonging to the Army Temperance Association a soldier named Thomas Allen was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, and for assaulting an old woman named Mulrany a youth named Lenihan, residing at Upper Glanmire, was sentenced to a month's imprisonment.

The Tredagh bazar, organized for the purpose of liquidating the debt incurred in the repair of the Christian Brothers' schools, Drogheda, was opened on Monday by Cardinal Logue. His Eminence delivered an important speech, in the course of which he warmly eulogized the services of the Christian Brothers to the cause of religious and national training of the youth of Ireland, and in counteracting the evil effect of the system which had existed hitherto under the National Education Board.

On Tuesday, Messrs. Wall, Byrne and Swift, the three Divisional Magistrates, sat in the Southern Police Court for the purpose of hearing a reargument of an application of Jeremiah Burke, of Parkgate street, for a Magistrate's certificate for a seven-day license. It was stated by counsel that Burke had promised to abide by an undertaking, which he had given to the Recorder, only to use the license for hotel purposes, and that consequently all the objections to his applications were withdrawn. The bench granted the certificate.

Edward Jacob, who resided at Wells, near Oulart, County Wexford, has just been found dead in his bed. The deceased had reached the extraordinary age of 105 years, and until the last retained all his faculties. He had been for many years in the employment of C. M. Doyle, Wells, and for a number of years past had been in receipt of a pension from Doyle. More than usual local sensation has been caused by the event, on account of the old man's house having been broken into a week ago by a man named Richard Humphrey, also an employee of Doyle, who was brought before the magistrates and bound to the peace. It is supposed that the shock hastened Jacob's death.

On Thursday night a dastardly attempt was made to burn the dwelling house, out-offices, etc., of a respectable farmer, James Cussen, residing in the townland of Ballinagail. On the night in question a young lady, Miss Cowhey, was proceeding to Cussen's house to spend a few social hours there, and in doing so she observed several fires as if recently started issuing from the roofs of the different buildings, in close proximity to which were stored about five tons of oat straw and two tons of wheat straw. She at once gave the alarm to the owners, who with some neighbors assembled in the house immediately turned out and with much difficulty succeeded in arresting the progress of the flames, which if allowed to continue a little longer would have caused the most disastrous results. District Inspector Morley and Head Constable O'Byrne visited the scene and investigated the matter. The damage done was happily light.

One of the most important awards in connection with the annual breeders' exhibition, held at the Agricultural Hall, Ballington, has fallen to an Irish firm. In the competition for malting barley, for which there was a very large number of entries, Messrs. Perse, the well known Galway distillers, were awarded a special silver medal and the Mark Lane Express diploma for a specimen of barley grown by P. Noon, of Cahernamadra. The judges expressed themselves intensely pleased with the quality of the exhibit, and to mark their sense of gratification at the improvement in the specimens of Irish barley shown this year they have decided to offer a special silver challenge cup for competition next year exclusively among Irish exhibitors. The judges hope by this means to foster a spirit of healthy rivalry among Irish growers which they believe can not fail to have beneficial effects on the quality of the crop produced. In this connection they point out the great importance of growers planting their seed early in the year.

The retirement of P. McDermott, M. P., from Parliament is regarded with sincere regret by all Nationalists and his party colleagues. He has rendered excellent service in Parliament and in the constituencies during the past ten years and acted in the staunchest way during the days of dissension. It is greatly to be deplored that the party, especially at this juncture, should lose the services of so tried and trusted a member. Indeed McDermott's determination to resign because he finds it physically impossible to attend during the day to the business on which he is dependent and at the same time be present throughout the entire sittings of the House of Commons is a testimony to his conscientious regard for duty. His attendance at the house has been excellent all along, but apparently he finds it impossible to continue what is a very serious tax even on the most robust constitution. At the same time it is to be hoped that some way may be found for enabling him to continue to represent the constituency of those interests as well as the interests of the Irish cause he has been so faithful and devoted a guardian.

Information reached Derry on Tuesday of a sad and peculiar occurrence at a place called Ballyfuton, Sionmills. A quarrel is suspected to have taken place on Monday forenoon between Edward Donnelly and his wife. Whatever actually took place has not yet transpired beyond the fact that a daughter went to the police and stated that a quarrel was going on in the house. The Sergeant and some constables immediately proceeded to the residence of Donnelly and on arrival found Mrs. Donnelly in convulsions lying in the byre. A few minutes afterward she expired. The Sergeant at once placed the husband under arrest and communicated with the Coroner. An inquest was opened and adjourned for the purpose of a post-mortem examination. It appears that Donnelly is by trade a bee-keeper, with a small piece of land attached to his house. He is about thirty-five years of age, and it is alleged he had been given to drink for some days. On Monday morning he asked his wife for some money, which he got. Shortly after he returned and wanted to sell a cow. His wife remonstrated and a quarrel followed. He was brought before a local justice at Strabane and remanded.

HAPPY HUNTING CLUB.

The Happy Hunting Club, consisting of Messrs. John F. Chester, Dr. S. J. Hall, John F. Oertel, F. William Hoffman and other well known gentlemen, will leave Sunday for a trip down the Cumberland river. They will be gone about two weeks, and expect to shoot all the deer down there.

PICTURES IN THE HOME.

When we enter a home among the first things to attract our attention are the pictures, and from them we can read the taste—or lack of it—of the lady of the house, for they give us the keynote to her character. If we find gaudy chromos and cheap oil paintings we know at once that refinement is lacking in that home.

Pictures should be selected always with an eye to the surroundings in which they will be placed. If the house is very large and handsome, and money of no consideration, then, of course, oil paintings by the best artists are preferable. People of moderate incomes, who wish tasteful homes, should choose water colors, engravings or etchings if they can be afforded. Even wood cuts are preferable to poor paintings, and so cheaply can they be purchased that the poorest may have copies of the great masterpieces.

WHEN WOMEN BECOME STRONG.

There are startling examples of the development of the capacity in women for doing men's work. When families that have been strong and prospered get starting down hill and the men die off or go to seed or lose heart or health, it is not an uncommon thing to see the women develop under stress of circumstances a virile vigor that meets the storm and weathers it. Very able women are developed by defects in man, and of course when the wheel has once fallen to them and their will have been trained to steering they will not readily give up a place that they have fairly won. Nor should they. The mischief, what there is of it, has been done; let the consequences abide. The chief mischief is that, though a woman may come out strong in doing a man's work, the man whose work is done for him, if there is one, is apt to come out weak.

Father Lynch Celebrates Feast of All Saints at Holy Name Church.

Memory of Father Tierney Still Lingers Among the Catholics.

Beautiful November Weather Seems to Be An Incentive to Marriage.

DEATH OF AN EXEMPLARY CHRISTIAN

[Special Correspondence of the Kentucky Irish American.]

HENDERSON, Nov. 1.—Today being the feast of All Saints two masses were celebrated at Holy Name church by our new pastor, Rev. Father Lynch, late of Louisville, who comes to us as the successor of the late Father Tierney, who served the people of this parish for more than twenty-five years. The sermon at the high mass was relative to the sacred honor in which the church holds the memory of her heroes, the saints, so numerous that each day of the year is not sufficient date for the number of illustrious souls who have gone before. Speaking in reference to our lives here he declared we, who are of the same flesh and blood as were they, have only to model our lives after theirs, and then in whatever capacity or calling our lots may be cast we may become true followers of Christ and His servants, too. His sermon was an eloquent one and made a favorable impression on those who heard it.

The beautiful weather we are enjoying so late this season seems to be an incentive to marriage, as there were five publications at the mass today.

'Tis said that the number of members of this congregation is near 900 adults, and yet from some unknown cause a good portion remain away from their duties. No one can afford to sacrifice religious duty for worldly pleasure and pastime, which is only a waste of God-given time and of no advantage to the soul.

We are pained to chronicle the death of Mrs. Joseph Mullen, who died a few days ago. Deceased was an exemplary Christian, resigned to the divine will of Him whom we pray will rest her soul and protect her two orphan children.

How our hearts beat in warmth and kind remembrance of our late pastor, Father Tierney. His memory lingers in the minds of the people whom he served and with whom he prayed, also the kind offices the dead priest performed for all who, called upon him in joy, sorrow, sickness and health. The marriages, baptisms, blessings, all fell like gentle dew upon the grass, and oh! let us hope that his many efforts and his constant toil at saving souls were not spent in vain, but rather let us pray that God was pleased with his intentions and will work wonders for him by numerous conversions to the faith. May his dear soul rest in peace.

It occurs to my mind that Catholic men and women who act in capacity of teachers in the public schools of the country could attain a more perfect and pleasing object in employment more in accordance with their faith. The humility attendant upon the position of public teachers with an enforcement of the rules prescribed, all of which are antagonistic to the Catholic faith, seems to me to be a compromise on the part of teacher, and if not that then there is a tinge of hypocrisy or working against faith for the sake of lucre, which while an indispensable object ought not to be obtained at risk of a sacrifice of religious belief. Indeed some Catholics seem to feel honored by a tender of such a situation, but in most cases there is an indifference to Catholic theory or practice and a liberal feeling for the creed of those not of the faith too apparent not to be observed.

CATHOLIC UNION.

Names Delegates to the National Federation of Catholic Societies.

Hon. Edward J. McDermott and Dr. J. W. Fowler Unanimous Choice.

The Annual Election of Officers Postponed Until Return of Delegates.

KNIGHTS OF ST. JOHN JOIN UNION

In spite of the disagreeable weather that prevailed last Sunday night there was a rather surprising attendance of delegates at the meeting of the Catholic Union at Satoli Hall when President McDermott assumed the chair. The officers were all present excepting Secretary Cooney, whose health would not permit his leaving his home.

Circulars from the officers of the National Federation of Catholic Societies, calling for representatives to the national convention which meets at Cincinnati next month, and for which the Catholics of that city are making extensive preparations, were read and discussed. The best address of the evening was delivered by Newton G. Rogers, the well known lawyer, representing Division 1 of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Mr. Rogers explained at some length and in a convincing manner the great work that can be accomplished by the coming convention. He also urged that Louisville Catholics be represented and offered a motion to that effect, which was carried unanimously.

The only names presented were those of Hon. Edward J. McDermott and Dr. J. W. Fowler, and they were elected delegates by acclamation. Messrs. John J. Sullivan and William C. Smith were named as alternates. The foregoing gentlemen have taken a great interest in the question of national federation, and their selection will be heartily approved of by the various organizations members of the union.

Another prominent Catholic organization heretofore unrepresented, St. George Commandery 141, Knights of St. John, had present as its delegate Mr. L. F. Steiner, who informed those present that the Knights of St. John generally had endorsed the proposed federation and had been instrumental in bringing about the call for the national convention.

In view of the fact that it would be difficult to carry out the full purposes of the organization until after the Cincinnati meeting and all became members of the union it was decided not to hold another meeting until after the return of Messrs. McDermott and Fowler. All delegates and societies will be notified of the meeting by Secretary Cooney, who was instructed to issue a special circular containing everything of interest pertaining thereto, when it is expected all the German Catholic organizations, which are between thirty and forty in number, will be represented by delegates.

It was the intention to elect officers for the next year Sunday night, but in view of the fact that many new organizations were expected to affiliate within the next sixty days it was deemed advisable to further postpone the election. It is the wish of those already members to give those societies heretofore unrepresented a prominent place under the incoming officers and full representation on all the standing committees.

The Kentucky Irish American will be represented at the national convention and all who are interested therein will find a complete report in its columns, with the announcement of the date of the next meeting of the union.

THEATRICALS.

Frank B. Carr's Thoroughbreds will be the coming week's attraction at the Buckingham. The company is heralded as one of the most meritorious vaudeville aggregations on the road, composed of such people as Farnum and Healey, Silvers and Applegate, Pearl Marguen, McCale and Carew, Polk and Tresk, Josie Flynn, Gypzene and Roma and about twenty-five others equally clever. The company will present the newest farcial burlesque, "The Isle of Bliss."

"Man's Enemy," the attraction which will open at the Avenue next week, is not only melodrama pure and simple, but it is of that class of drama which is beneath the dignity of no one, as it is a production true to nature and faithfully portrays how easily a man can be ensnared by the mercenary woman. The evil influence of strong drink, combined with that of woman, is used to advantage in the piece, and in consequence furnishes abundant food for thought. Miss Agnes Herndon, who enacts the difficult role of Sarah Drake, the adventuress, is supported by a very strong company.

The attraction underlined for the Temple Theater next week is "Doris," the play which Effie Ellsler made famous, and in which she scored her greatest success. This will be the first chance afforded Louisville theater-goers to see this really excellent play at popular prices, which Col. Meffer and the Temple company will put on and present in hand-some style. For vaudeville between the acts two great turns will be seen. The management has secured Oscar Lewis and Sam Green, who will present a decided novelty, entitled "Swede in a Chop House." Ten Toozoonin Arabs will appear in an acrobatic specialty, and their turn is said to be especially good. There has been a large increase in attendance during the past week, and the company is being still further strengthened. Seats should be reserved in advance for next week's performance.

Send us the news of your parish.

HIBERNIANS.

What They Have Been Doing the Past Week—General News Notes.

Division 3 transacted only routine business Monday night.

Division 51 was organized at Somerville, Mass., with sixty-nine charter members.

Division 7 of Trenton, although in its infancy, achieved a social triumph at its first annual ball.

Division 32 of Saxonville will open its annual fair for the benefit of the sick and funeral funds next Wednesday evening.

Hibernians throughout the city regret the illness of Financial Secretary Nic Sheridan, of Division 3. All hope for his speedy recovery.

Division 5 of Providence will open its fair on the first Tuesday in December and continue every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday during the month.

Division 12 of Southbridge is reported one of the most prosperous divisions in Massachusetts, having a membership of 120 and a bank account running into four figures.

Chairman Quinn is arranging another excellent programme for the next social session of Division 3, which takes place at Hibernian Hall on Monday evening, November 18.

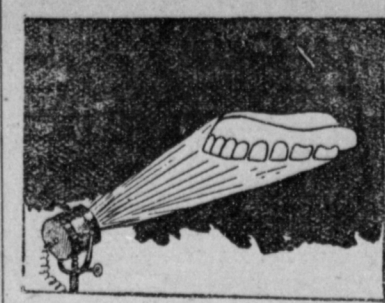

Next week will be a busy one in local Hibernian circles. Beginning Tuesday evening, there will be a meeting every night. The matter of furnishing a room at St. Anthony's will also be decided.

At the request of the State President the degree team of Division 18 of Providence exemplified the third and fourth degrees for Division 1 of Pawtucket, R. I., last Sunday. Thirty members of the division accompanied the team.

Mrs. Mary A. Laughlin, State President of the Ladies' Auxiliary of New York, died last week at Buffalo. She had been ill but a short time, and the news of her death was received with many expressions of sadness by sister and brother members throughout the State, where she was widely known and beloved and respected.

CATHOLIC SUMMER SCHOOLS.

Catholic summer schools are multiplying, as it was announced there is to be still another established. Bishop Quigley, of Buffalo, has bought the property known as the Alfred Cheney farm, on Chautauqua lake, and intends to build upon it a summer residence for himself and also a summer school. The farm comprises about seventy acres and is situated between Mayville, the county seat of Chautauqua county, and Jamestown, the largest town in the county. It is within fifteen miles of the Chautauqua Assembly grounds and is opposite Bemis Point. The establishment of a summer school like the one now contemplated has long been the desire of the Catholics in that part of the State, and at last this educational plan is to be realized and speedily put into operation.
